Tour around 100 Treasure Troves in Numazu NO.46: NUMAZUGAKI (a bamboo fence which has been handed down in Numazu)

Numazugaki is a bamboo fence which had long been used since ancient times in Numazu and its vicinity to prevent sand and wind from the beach. The landscape with Numazugaki is fascinating and its function as a windbreak or a sand-preventer is excellent. Since Numazugaki had been used in Old Numazu Imperial Villa as well, it came to be widely known to the public. Numazugaki is made of thin bamboos (Shino-dake) called Hakone-dake. The bundles of ten culms of Shino-dake are weaved into a wickerwork-patterned fence. The way of weaving this wickerwork pattern is called “Futa-te-goshi”, which means that each bundle of bamboo culms called “te” is weaved over two other “te”. Today you can see these Numazugaki bamboo fences mainly in Numazu Goyotei (Imperial Villa) Memorial Park or in Wakayama Bokusui Museum.

- Numazugaki in Numazu Goyotei (Imperial Villa) Memorial Park
- Numazugaki depicted behind the woman who is drying fish in the sun in the woodprint work “Jinbutsu Tokaido (Tokaido Highway with Characters), Numazu” by Utagawa Hiroshige

— To hand down the skills of making Numazugaki to the next generation —

For the purpose of handing down the skills of making Numazugaki to the next generation, Numazugaki bamboo fences have been produced and sold at the public utility corporation Numazu Silver Human Resource Center. However, in recent years, they have been standing at the crossroads because the order quantity has been decreasing and the craftsmen have reached the age of retirement. The center held a training session for learning skills of making Numazugaki in order to hand down the tradition.

▲ Kubota Eiichi san, who was the instructor of the training session, has been producing Numazugaki for over 20 years. “Weaving bamboo culms one by one is hard work, but the beautiful wickerwork pattern with bamboo culms neatly set in a row really fascinates me,” he says.

▼There were ten participants in the training session for this year. One of the participants, Shimoda Reiko san talked about her experience in an interview. “We had to bend bamboo culms. It was really tough work for me.”
